

FACE MATTERS

My fab glam squad, including make-up artist Camila Fernandez, worked hard to make me camera-ready, and as I took advice, I also noted the products used. I was already a fan of L'Oréal's Color Riche nude lipsticks in Eva and Cheryl (created for Eva Longoria and Cheryl Fernandez-Versini) and regularly use Brow Artist to add colour and definition to brows. And it is always good to have an expert reminder of how to use concealer properly.

- 1. L'Oréal Paris Color Riche nude lipstick in Eva, £6.99
- 2. Bobbi Brown Creamy Concealer Kit in Beige, £24.50

BEAUTY INSIDER

NAILING IT

Nail technician Lorraine Griffin is the go-to manicurist for Versace and did Kate Moss's nails for her Playboy cover shoot, so it was an honour to have her paint my nails in the most wearable nude. There is nothing quite like being told off for my usual gel nail enamel addiction by a professional in the know. "Gel polish can dry your nails if you don't give them a break," Lorraine warned. "So use a good nail oil every night."

- 1. CND SolarOil nail and cuticle conditioner, £12.95, from blowltd.com
- 2. L'Oréal Paris Color Riche Nail in Rose Bagatelle, £4.99

I spend a lot of time behind the camera, chatting to actresses, models and singers or interviewing make-up artists and hairstylists, so I wanted to invite you behind the scenes of my own photo shoot with photographer Simon Emmett, the man responsible for Helen Mirren's new L'Oréal Paris campaign shots (above left). The Oscar-winning star was my inspiration for the day, but what was she like to work with? "To be honest, I was a little in awe," confided Simon, who has photographed more than his share of A-listers. "She was kind and patient, funny and smart – she had us all in thrall. A total professional and, of course, utterly beautiful, and ballsy too – can I say that?"

Ready for my close-up thanks to hairstylist Syd Hayes and make-up artist Camila (right)
